PERSONAL PROFILE

Anfaal currently works as an Assistant Professor of Accounting at Alfaisal University, Riyadh, KSA. She was previously an Assistant Professor of Accounting as University of Doha for Science and Technology, Qatar. Anfaal holds a first-class degree in Accounting and Finance from the University of Glasgow. She was awarded the prestigious Beta, Gamma Sigma award and was also awarded the honorable Wards Trust Scholarship to pursue her PhD. Anfaal holds a PhD in Accounting and Finance from the University of Glasgow (2023). Her PhD research is titled, 'Geography, Accountability & Capital: an ethnography of Ecological Accountabilities in Gilgit-Baltistan'. Anfaal was born and grew up in Glasgow but her passion in exploring and unfolding deeper aspects of the Pakistani culture and economy, led her to conduct ethnographic fieldwork within a rural village and remote valley in Northern Pakistan. Her empirical findings contribute to critical aspects of accounting, with a focus on ecological accountabilities. Through animating and storying the ecological accountabilities she experienced in Pakistan, Anfaal unveils how capital and accountability play out in the ecologically fragile and sensitive ecologies of Northern Pakistan. Anfaal takes great inspiration from the works of feminist economic geographers, J.K. Gibson Graham as well as Donna Haraway and Robert Hugh Gray, who have paved ways to look at critical perspectives of alternative, non-capitalistic (post- capitalistic) and diverse economies as well as practices of ecological accounting which are intertwined to their geographies. In addition to her thesis, Anfaal is keen to further contribute to research on community economies, ecological perspectives on accounting and accountability and alternative, other-than capitalistic economies. Anfaal is also affiliated with the NGO, Graduate Women International and her involvement in interfaith projects alongside Faith Forum Scotland, as well as her extensive voluntary engagement in community initiatives, she has developed expectational stakeholder management, science communication and management skills. Through such engagements, Anfaal values cultural inclusion in an inclusive learning space.
